

The Scituate PAC presents:

How to talk to your child about their disability?

Parents frequently express concern that telling a child too much, too little or nothing at all about his/her learning, social, behavioral or cognitive disability. Will knowing too much make the child become even more conscious of their difficulties and contribute to feelings of being "different?" In our round table discussion, Ms. Linda Nathan, ICSW one of Scituate Public School's elementary school social workers, will discuss how to talk to a child about the problem and their disability. Please join us.

Wamptuck School Library
Wednesday, February 29th
7-8:30pm

Check out the latest news, events and resources on our website at www.scituatespedpac.org.